

My Research Position Module had to be one of my best academic pieces and assignments I have ever done. Starting from the research I had to start from scratch. I wanted to make a topic that I love and was familiar with. The topic was about how video games positively and negatively affect anyone. Going into the research, there were a lot of articles explaining how video games are bad for you. After I found my arguments both bad and good, I made my essay. When writing this I made sure to explain how video games are fun but that they can hurt you physically and mentally. When I got the feedback from my professor I was thrilled to see that the only thing I had to change was the usage of “I”. Since this was a research paper I could not use “I”. I fixed everything up and got a perfect score on that essay. I am so glad that I was able to do this essay and now I can confidently say that I have gotten better at writing essays.
